Travel notice

Recently, the Euskadi Ta Askatasuna, a terrorist organization in northern Spain, issued statements indicating they will begin targeting the Spanish tourist industry. In the past, the ETA primarily targeted Spanish military, police and government officials. Although Americans have not been targeted in the past, they may become casualties as innocent bystanders during a terrorist attack.

People with plans to visit Spain should contact the local Air Force Office of Special Investigations Detachment 518 at 452-6291 or 06565-616291.

Load crew competition

The 52nd Fighter Wing Load Crew of the Quarter and Jammer Driver competitions for the second quarter are July 3, beginning at 7 a.m. The awards presentation begins at 4 p.m. in Hangar 1.

Drinking water

A recent sampling of drinking water at Spangdahlem Air Base indicated the level of lead in the water exceeds the action level for lead.

Officials at the 52nd Medical Group's bioenvironmental engineering flight said although the problem will be lasting quite some time, there are ways to eliminate the

Col. Ian P. O'Connell accepts control of the 52nd Support Group from Col. Gregg Sanders, 52nd Fighter Wing commander, at the group's change of command ceremony June 14, 2001. O'Connell comes to Spangdahlem Air Base from Luke Air Force Base, Ariz., where he was the 56th Support Group deputy commander.

In a change of command ceremony June 14, the 52nd Support Group gained a new leader. Col. Ian P. O'Connell took the helm of the group from Col. Gregg Sanders, who left Spangdahlem Air Base to be the 51st Fighter Wing vice commander at Osan Air Base, Korea.

O'Connell comes to Spangdahlem AB from the 56th Support Group at Luke Air Force Base, Ariz., where he was the deputy commander.

A career fighter pilot, O'Connell has actually spent the past four years in support jobs. He believes his experience in operations, as well as in support, will assist the group in supporting its primary mission.

"We have great people in the support group. They are extremely talented and motivated to accomplish the mission," he said. "My job is to provide the guidance and support to ensure the people in the group can excel. When people know that leadership trusts them and supports them, they can and will work miracles."

O'Connell said he has simple goals for his new job - to ensure the success of the wing's flying and expeditionary missions, continue improving Spangdahlem AB and to provide outstanding support to the community.

He said he is looking forward to this new adventure.

"Before I arrived here, I knew the outstanding reputation of the wing and the group. The group is recognized Air Force-wide as outstanding. Everything I've seen since I arrived simply reinforces that."

Geographically separated unit changes command structure

470th Air Base Squadron at NATO Air Base Geilenkirchen realigns under 52nd Support Group

By Tech. Sgt. Rich Romero
52nd Fighter Wing Public Affairs Office

In a ceremony Tuesday, Air Force officials streamlined a confusing command structure for the 470th Air Base Squadron, a geographically separated unit of Spangdahlem Air Base.

As the United States Air Forces in Europe component at NATO Air Base Geilenkirchen, Germany, the 470th ABS and NATO Airborne Early Warning Force commanders are one in the same. A package to change that command chain was signed by the USAFE commander, according to Lt. Col. Ken Koehler, 470th ABS deputy commander.

"Previously, the unit reported directly to the 52nd Fighter Wing command staff," he said. "With the reorganization, we realign with the 52nd Support Group."

The nearly 150 members of the 470th ABS provide base support to about 450 U.S. Air Force people assigned to the 14-nation flying mission at Geilenkirchen — mirroring the services performed by the 52nd SPTG for people on Spangdahlem AB.

While transparent to most people at both Geilenkirchen and Spangdahlem AB, the change provides the unit more direct access into the 52nd SPTG, Koehler said.

"The reorganization gives me much more direct access," Koehler said. "With the previous structure, I reported to the NATO commander, who in turn reports to a commander in

Accidents

By Staff Sgt. Cassandra A. Watts

52nd Security Forces Squadron Reports and Analysis

There were four major and nine minor accidents involving Americans this week in the Eifel.

One major accident happened when an American driver hit a local national's car head-on. The American driver was traveling on L-46 when he lost control of his vehicle, swerved into the other lane and struck the other vehicle. The American was transported to the Trier Krankenhaus for medical treatment. Both vehicles were towed from the accident scene.

The second major accident involved a multiple vehicle collision at the Metterich/Huttingen intersection on B-50. After investigating the accident it was revealed that a 1988 Mercedes attempted to make a U-turn and caused the vehicle immediately behind it to come to a sudden stop, initiating a chain reaction of rear-end collisions. Three vehicles were involved and two people were transported to the Krankenhaus with complaints of neck injuries.

The minor accidents included:

- Three in parking lots
- Three as a result of improper backing
- One caused by inattentive driving

There were 69 citations issued this week. Of those, 14 were violations on B-50. The number issued decreased from the previous week.

As a reminder, even though the 52nd Fighter Wing has a new commander, the B-50 Wing policy is still in effect.

Belgium. This now links me to resources at Spangdahlem because I report directly to the command structure there, not via NATO.

"I'll actually be able to go and sit as a member of the support group command staff. Because of the NATO commander's responsibilities to the flying mission, he doesn't have the opportunity to do that." The unit is located about two hours northwest on a NATO base nestled along the borders of Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands.

"Because support services (at Spangdahlem AB) are too far removed as a result of the nearly two-hour drive, this unit was put here to provide the type of services people expect when they come overseas," Koehler said.

Those services include child development and family support centers, finance, postal, dental, medical, military personnel flight, civil engineering, security, communications and more.

Along with the reorganization at the 470th ABS, Koehler said a GSU Tiger Team is nearly finished with a report providing recommendations to the USAFE commander on how best to manage and operate the number of GSUs throughout the command.

level of lead in drinking water here.

People should remember to flush their taps until the water reaches its coldest temperature before using it for drinking, cooking or making baby formula. The tap flushing has proven, indicated by sampling, to be effective in reducing water lead to levels so low, no lead can be detected. For more information, call Capt. Tim Allmann at 452-8348.

Legal services

The 52nd Fighter Wing legal office offers services such as wills, living wills, powers of attorneys, notaries and other personal civil legal matters.

The legal office can not assist with criminal matters, privately owned businesses, claims against the U.S. Air Force agencies or officials, or legal issues or concerns raised on behalf of another person.

Increased patrols

The Luxembourg police recently increased radar checks on all Luxembourg roads, particularly on A-1 between Luxembourg city and Trier. The speed limit on all Luxembourg roads is 90 kph and on Luxembourg autobahns is 120 kph. People who get caught speeding and can't pay the fine immediately will have their vehicle taken as security.

Vehicle plates

The only authorized vehicle license plates are those issued by a U.S. Army Europe community field registry station (pass and registration at Spangdahlem Air Base). People with USAREUR motor vehicle registrations aren't authorized to replace the issued USAREUR plates with customized plates made by a German local plate manufacturer.

Violators will receive a citation and have their plates confiscated. They also run the risk of having their registration cancelled. For more information, call DSN 386-7280.

AMC pet test

Air Mobility Command, in coordination with their commercial Patriot Express partners, holds a three-month test initiative to allow movement of pets with containers weighing up to 150 pounds on all AMC Patriot Express missions. The test is in effect now through the end of August.

Those affected by this policy should call 452-6661.

Mail hold

Postal regulations require parcels not claimed within 15 days to be returned to the sender. To prevent this from happening while on leave or TDY, postal customers should complete a PS Form 2258, "Temporary Mail Disposition Instruction," before departing the area.

By using the form, customers may elect to have their mail held or forwarded. Also, filling out a PS Form 3801, "Standing Delivery Order," allows a friend temporary authorization to pick up mail.

Instructors wanted

The 52nd Communications Squadron seeks people with knowledge in Microsoft Office applications to instruct software training programs. Classes include software installation and configuration; beginner and intermediate Word, PowerPoint and Excel; beginner; intermediate and advanced Access; Hyper Text Markup Language; Web development; and FrontPage. For more information, call 452-5384.

Vehicle washing

The only authorized washing area on Bitburg is the car wash near the old main gate. German environmental regulations deem Bitburg a water protection zone; therefore, water pollutants and soaps are to be used only in designated areas. Call 452-6082 for more information.

Tip of the hat

The following are excerpts from Air Force Personnel Center's frequently asked questions list published at <http://www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/dress/appearance/MainUniform/Folder/faq.html>.

■ Air Force members aren't authorized to wear the Marine Corps five-point style battle dress uniform hat.

■ Wearing anklets while in uniform isn't authorized. Information about bracelet wear can be found in Air Force Instruction 36-2903, table 2.5.

■ Name brands on eye wear frames or lenses is considered ornamentation and isn't authorized.

U.S. military shows off at world's largest airshow

By Tech. Sgt. John Tomassi
U.S. European Command Public Affairs Office

PARIS, France - More than 240 aircraft, including nine U.S. military aircraft from the Army, Navy and Air Force are on display at the 44th Paris Air Show June 16-25.

The biennial show opened under cloudy skies and periodic downpours, which didn't dampen the spirits of the approximately 250,000 people who attend the public day June 17.

With more than 1,700 exhibitors representing 43 countries, the Paris Air Show is the oldest and largest aeronautical show in the world.

The week long exhibition at Le Bourget, a small town just outside of Paris, offers the exhibitors a chance to display their aviation wares and offers the U.S. military a chance to promote standardization and interoperability of equipment with our NATO allies and other potential coalition partners.

U.S. Military aircraft on display include AH-64 Apache, C-17 Globemaster III, C-29A Hawker 800, C-40 Clipper, CH-47 Chinook, F-15E Strike Eagle, F-16C/D Fighting Falcon, F/A-18F Super Hornet, UH-60L Black Hawk and an RQ-1 Predator Unmanned Aerial Vehicle.

A big attraction for the crowd was the U.S. Air Force F-16 Fighting Falcon. The F-16 is a multi-role fighter aircraft that can reach speeds up to 1,500 mph.

"I think it's cool and a big honor to be chosen from my squadron to represent the Air Force at the world's largest air show," said Staff Sgt. Dean Piersall, F-16 crew chief.

The Fighting Falcon on display at the air show is assigned to the 22nd Fighter Squadron at Spangdahlem Air Base, Germany. Another F-16 from the 23rd FS was also at the air show to perform aerial demonstrations. In attendance at the air show to provide aircrew, maintenance and administrative support were members of 22nd and 23rd Fighter Squadrons.

Tech. Sgt. John Tomassi

Two F-16CJ Fighting Falcons from the 22nd and 23rd Fighter Squadrons at Spangdahlem Air Base were displayed at the 44th Paris Air Show from June 16 and continuing through Sunday. One of nine U.S. military aircraft displayed, the fighters helped show support to our allies at one of the world's premier events. Members of the 22nd and 23rd FS in attendance at the air show provided aircrew, maintenance and administrative support services. Say It Isn't So (R)

Gilly is in love with Jo, finally finding the woman of his dreams. Then he's horrified to learn Jo might actually be his long, lost sister. Run out of town for partaking in a perverse relationship, he still pines for Jo daily. Months later, when he learns that Jo is going to marry, he leaves Indiana to travel to Beaver, Oregon, to stop the wedding. He stops at nothing to prove to Jo that he might not really be her brother and that they can live happily ever after together.

Thursday

Tomcats (R)

The Tomcats are a group of freewheeling, sex-fueled single buddies who go up against each other in a betting pool that will leave the "last man standing" unmarried with the jackpot. Fast-forward seven years to today, when they are all married and starting families with the exception of two confirmed bachelors.
